

Comment from Susan Shultz in response to Request for Information for Nonlawyer Assistance and Representation
July 7, 2024

1. Law enforcement encroaches, interferes in contracts, accuses of crime, and says "it's a civil matter, get legal assistance, call 211." Except that I'm not eligible for legal assistance because apparently profiling and denial of trial are not considered "discrimination." 211 shields administrators from tort liability, as it is more convenient to declare me homeless instead of relocating me.

2. DOJ representation of EPA against civil enforcement of the Clean Air Act is when I quit America.

3. How can citizens enforce their rights when they don't get the chance to exercise them? Now they are assisted into the black hole of the 211 "safety net" right next to the suicide hotline number.

Good work, team.
