

Listing Agency Officials

Committee on Administration and Management

Proposed Recommendation from Committee on Administration and Management | November 4, 2019

1           Presidential appointees and the members of the Senior Executive Service (SES) who 2 perform significant leadership responsibilities sit at the highest levels of federal agencies.<sup>1</sup> In 3 December 2016, the federal government included 1,242 Senate-confirmed, presidentially-
4 appointed positions (PAS positions) and 472 other presidentially-appointed positions (PA
5 positions).<sup>2</sup> The SES included 8,156 individuals in 2016 (7,321 career SES, 737 noncareer SES,
6 and 96 limited-term/limited-emergency SES), many of whom act as agency leaders.<sup>3</sup> This group
7 of agency officials helps direct a federal workforce of more than two million employees.<sup>4</sup>

8           PAS officials make or advocate policy for a presidential administration and serve at the 9 pleasure of the President.<sup>5</sup> These officials at the top of federal agencies are often the most visible
10 political appointments and require the occupant to be nominated by the President and confirmed
11 by the Senate. PAS positions are part of the Executive Schedule, which prescribes the basic pay

12 schedule and salaries of most presidential appointees.<sup>6</sup> These officials are among the highest-13 paid civilian government officials,<sup>7</sup> and a number of statutes and regulations establish special
14 rules, obligations, and restrictions on their activities.<sup>8</sup> These officials may be asked to resign or 15 be dismissed at any time, “[t]hey are not covered by standard civil service removal 16 procedures[,]” and they “customarily resign at the request of the new incoming administration”
17 during a presidential transition.<sup>9</sup>

18         The President directly appoints PA officials, who also serve at his or her pleasure. These 19 positions are typically located within the Executive Office of the President and multi-member
20 boards, commissions, and committees.<sup>10</sup> PA positions are not part of the General Schedule pay
21 system, and they may fall within the scope of several other pay systems, including the Executive 22 Schedule.<sup>11</sup> Similar to Senate-confirmed officials, PA officials may also be subject to special 23 rules, obligations, and restrictions on their activities, and they also typically resign during a 24 presidential transition.<sup>12</sup>

25         The SES is a government-wide personnel system covering senior management, 26 supervisory, and top-level policy positions in most federal agencies, and these positions are not

27 part of the General Schedule pay system.<sup>13</sup> These SES officials often direct and monitor the 28 activities of agencies; supervise the work of federal employees; exercise “important policy-29 making, policy-determining, or other executive functions[;]” and are held accountable for the 30 success of programs and projects.<sup>14</sup> Approximately half of SES positions are reserved for career
31 employees, and the other half are classified as general SES positions, which may be filled by a 32 career appointee, a political appointee, a limited-emergency appointee, or a limited-term
33 appointee.<sup>15</sup> The Office of Personnel Management (OPM) allots and closely regulates the total
34 number of SES positions for each agency.<sup>16</sup> By law, the number of political appointees may not 35 exceed ten percent of government-wide SES positions and may not exceed twenty-five percent
36 of a single agency’s total SES positions.<sup>17</sup>

37           The public often learns the identities of cabinet secretaries, heads of other agencies, and a 38 handful of other very high-ranking officials, if only through news coverage of the individuals.
39 But the public knows far less about the next layers of the executive branch, in part because 40 information can be difficult to locate in a centralized, updated, and comprehensive format.<sup>18</sup> A 41 recent report by the U.S. Government Accountability Office concluded that “there is no single 42 source of data on political appointees serving in the executive branch that is publicly available,

43 comprehensive, and timely.”<sup>19</sup> Much of this information is available in private-sector
44 publications, but they are expensive and not readily available to the public.

45 To be sure, various resources, including United States Government Policy and 46 Supporting Positions (the so-called “Plum Book”),<sup>20</sup> the Official Congressional Directory,<sup>21</sup> and 47 the United States Government Manual,<sup>22</sup> provide periodic snapshots of the occupants of certain 48 high-level agency positions. But these publications serve distinct purposes and objectives and, in 49 all events, given turnover, can quickly become out-of-date.<sup>23</sup> Likewise, although OPM maintains 50 extensive lists of federal employees, those lists are not readily available to the public.<sup>24</sup> Finally, 51 although some agencies provide current information about high-ranking officials on their 52 websites, practices vary significantly.<sup>25</sup> Detailed information about appointment terms, vacant
53 offices, acting officials, and delegated authority is often even more difficult to find.<sup>26</sup>

<sup>24</sup> See Ochoa, supra note 4, at 45–48. OPM’s data from agencies is based on the person, rather than based on the specific position or job. As a result, the agency stops sending information about a person and their position when they separate from an agency. With respect to PAS, PA, and SES officials, OPM’s data includes information about the name, agency, job title, start date, and type of appointment (PAS, PA, career SES, noncareer SES, limited-term SES, and limited-emergency SES). For these data-related reasons—and because agencies are best positioned to make determinations about which SES officials perform significant leadership responsibilities—the Recommendation to OPM includes all SES officials. OPM’s workforce information-reporting function under Civil Service Rule 9 excludes certain agencies and positions. 5 C.F.R. §§ 9.1, 9.2 (2019).

ADMINISTRATIVE CONFERENCE OF THE UNITED STATES

54           Knowing the identities of those who help lead federal agencies is important for 55 promoting transparency and facilitating public participation in the work of government.<sup>27</sup> For 56 instance, members of the public (including reporters and academic researchers), congressional 57 members and staff, White House officials, and officials at other federal and state agencies all 58 sometimes have reasons to know this information.<sup>28</sup>

59           One of this Recommendation’s purposes is to advance the Conference’s recent efforts to 60 promote greater access to relevant agency information.<sup>29</sup> This Recommendation is a companion
61 to Recommendation 2019-___, Acting Agency Officials and Delegations of Authority, which 62 promotes compliance with the Federal Vacancies Reform Act of 1998 and other agency-specific 63 succession statutes and encourages federal agencies to improve transparency regarding the use of 64 acting officials and agency delegations of authority in the face of staffing vacancies.<sup>30</sup>

RECOMMENDATION

Recommendations Applicable to Agencies Generally

- 65           1. Agencies should prominently display on their websites updated information about each
66 PAS and PA position, and any SES position that is assigned significant leadership

<sup>28</sup> See GAO, GOVERNMENT-WIDE POLITICAL APPOINTEE DATA, supra note 5, at 13. The Conference has previously addressed related issues. In 1968, the Conference recommended changes to the U.S. Government Organization Manual, specifically pointing out deficiencies with the “narrative text submitted” by agencies and encouraging agencies to improve these entries. Admin. Conf. of the U.S., Recommendation 68-2, U.S. Government Organization Manual (Dec. 11, 1968). This Recommendation goes much further, offering specific recommendations for making agency information publicly available.

67 responsibilities, including the name and contact information of the current or acting 68 official, as well as whether it is a PAS, PA, or SES position (and whether it is a career or 69 noncareer position). Vacancies for such positions should also be prominently displayed.

Recommendations Applicable to the Office of Personnel Management

- 70 2. The Office of Personnel Management (OPM) should publish data about PAS, PA, and 71 SES officials on a monthly basis on a public website and ensure the information is easily
72 accessible. This data should include the following fields, if applicable, for each listed
73 PAS, PA, and SES official: Name (first and last); Agency; Job Title; Start Date; and Type 74 of Appointment.
- 75 3. OPM should create a separate list of former PAS officials to the extent feasible.
